theme CZECH DREAMS – IMPRINTS AND RECOLLECTIONS

The first Czech Dreams project held in 2004 was intended as a one-off international venture of the Concentus Moraviae Festival associated with the significant anniversaries of a number of composers from the Czech lands and also with the accession of the Czech Republic into the European Union. The project's focal point was the repertoire and it resolved "to discover early works in dusty archives or new works in the drawers of living authors." The large international response was the inspiration for holding the second year of the project in 2007, which reflected the stagnation of the Czech performance tradition as a consequence of the many years of isolation of Czech musicians from the events taking place in the world and the difficulties of these musicians in breaking into the international scene and it therefore focussed on bringing Czech performers together with their best international contemporaries.

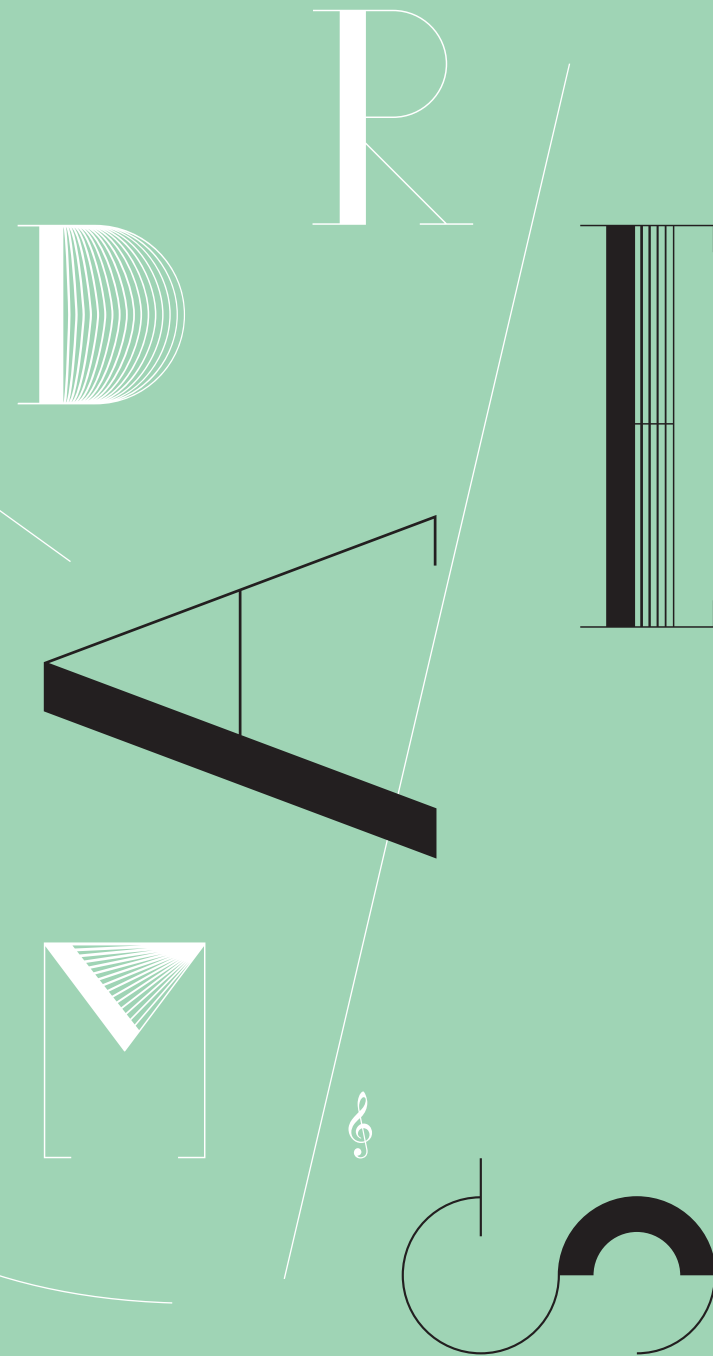

The focus of Czech Dreams 2011 involves Czech (based) musicians and their musical dreams. What was their motivation for choosing their specific instrument and for devoting themselves to music as their life's vocation? What guided their first conscious meeting with the music which has been dominant in their careers? Which of those emotions is still part of their artistic profile after many years and social transformations?

The earliest musical memory of the dramaturg of Czech Dreams 2011 is a radio broadcast of Trojan's Slavik performed by Ivan Kawaciuk. His immediate reaction was to choose the violin as his instrument, but perhaps even more interesting is the fact that many years later he also eventually started to compose film music. His inclination towards film music waited decades for its opportunity and asserted itself with the first commission. Czech Dreams 2011 will endeavour to find similar connections and to present them using the best Czech artists of the current period.

Connections with the previous two years of the project will be apparent on the one hand with the return to some works which were commissioned for Czech Dreams 2004 and 2007 and on the other hand with several newly commissioned works by Czech authors. As well as this, some of the extensive projects from the previous years will continue, of which the most substantial will involve the presentation of the third part of Jan Dismas Zelenka's Responsorium, the first two parts of which were prepared during Czech Dreams 2004 and 2007.

As in the case of the previous two years of the project, Czech Dreams 2011 mainly hopes to ensure that its audience members leave each individual concert with a feeling of having had an exceptional experience from listening to beautiful music performed excellently.

Aleš Březina, the dramaturg
